Investment Review

Performance

The Hurlingham Managed Growth Portfolio registered a return of 2.7% since launch, whilst the IMA Balanced Managed sector average returned 5.6% and the Fund's benchmark* recorded 4.9%.

Market Review

Equity markets have performed reasonably well in the period since the Fund's launch, although the period has been marked by volatility. From January through to May, performance was strong, with Emerging Markets leading the way. However, sharp setbacks were experienced in May and June as a result of investor concern over short-term inflation and medium-term global economic growth rates. Since then, confidence among investors has gradually returned, leading equity markets to return to the levels seen at the beginning of May.

Over the period as a whole, equities and property have generally performed well. Lower risk assets, such as fixed-interest securities, have found the going more difficult. Given the background of interest rates in recent months, this is not surprising; rates have been rising globally and appear likely to continue to do so into 2007.

Portfolio Activity

Following strong, albeit volatile, performances from our resource holdings, we sold Investec Global Energy, First State Global Resources and reduced our holdings in the BlackRock ML Gold & General Funds. The proceeds were used to purchase holdings in New Star Global Financials, Neptune Global Equity and International Biotech.

We switched our holding of Legg Mason US Smaller Companies Fund into a structured product from Barclays, which provides us with a geared play (125%) on the S&P 500 with capital protection should the market fall by less than 50% and is hedged back into sterling. We also sold Legg Mason US Equity and bought M&G American.

In Europe, we reduced our weighting in Artemis European Growth and introduced a new holding in Cazenove European.

By way of providing further diversification to the portfolio, we also took part in a placing of the UK Commercial Property Investment Trust, managed by Foreign & Colonial.

Outlook

Looking forward, earnings look likely to slow due to the impact of both higher input prices as well as the macro backdrop. However, valuation levels remain attractive in terms of the major indices and corporate liquidity levels also remain high.

We therefore remain relatively relaxed about risk assets, but will be watching the interest rate cycle very closely indeed. Growth remains higher than anticipated and this may trigger further rate rises in the UK, US and Europe.

Finally, with regards to property, returns have continued to be very encouraging, driven by both demand for assets, with a huge inflow of cash into the arena from investors and from a demand for yield from underlying investors.
